

Robert Shaw Carpenter

A typical Robert Shaw Carpenter has determination on his mind.
When there's not the right tool to do the job he has the ability to improvise.

Robert Shaw's was here serving the people, in the days before table saws, when the only method of making tight joints was good men with brain and brawn.

The noble motto of every man is "To The Work With All My Might."
Sure there're mistakes, but when we're a team everything works out just right.

Thus we grew from a one-room shack to the size we are today.
When we think of all the great folks we've served, we're not in the least ashamed.

Robert Shaw furniture will be standing firm when the last Carpenter's dead and gone.
If you want quality and deserve the best just call Robert Shaw.

2-21-94 Wesley J. Allen - ArtisticPoet48@aol.com www.InternationalEbookLibrary.com/LibraryofPoetry.htm

One day I caught Buck holding a board up on my table saw and cutting it with a handsaw. I shot a picture of that unusual sight, and that prompted this poem. His wife said to him later, "That guy must have had a darn good camera to make you look that good."

Need quality woodwork? www.RobertShawMfg.com